NEW EVIDENCE SHOWS MAN DRUGGED MARIETTA ODELL.

Evening World Obtains Confirmation of Girl's Story that She Met a Stranger While Out Bicycling.

An Evening World reporter discovered evidence to-day tending to confirm the story of Marietta Odell, the factory girl of Echo Lake, N. J., that she was given poison in beer by a stranger man.

A saloonkeeper of Wanaque named Deering says that a stranger visited the saloon Saturday afternoon bought several drinks and said that he had had a rattling good time the night before with a girl at Pompton. The description of the stranger fits that of the man Marietta Odell said she was with before her death.

Father to Seek Vengeance.

The father of Miss Odell was held this afternoon from the little Maunton church. The school at Echo Lake was closed and the whole village attended the funeral, which was quite impressive. Rev. George Whitehead officiated. The mother of the girl broke down after the funeral. At the side of the grave, the father, Stephen Odell, muttered vengeance upon the man who, he believed, drugged his daughter to death. The autopsy showed that the girl came to her death by poison. When Dr. Shippee told this to Mr. Odell he denounced the authorities, saying that he was certain that his daughter was drugged and that the police had not made proper efforts to apprehend the criminal.

"If the man who killed my girl does not answer to me," he said Odell, "he will have to answer to me." It was learned that Charles Fenner, with whom the girl was last seen, had not spoken truthfully in connection with the bicycle ride he took with Marietta Odell. He said that they stopped at the home of Mrs. Townsend Ricker. Mrs. Ricker said to-day that they did not stop at her home and that she did not see them. Employees of the powder mill at Pompton Lakes are ready to testify that they saw Fenner and another man with the girl shortly before she appeared at her boarding-house, 111

BRIBE OF $40,000 FOR A CITY PIER DEMANDED IN THE NAME OF MR. DADY.

Startling charges of blackmail were made before Mayor Low to-day.

L. D. Warren, an attorney for the Brauer Steamship Company, an applicant for a pier in the East River, charged that the company's representative had been told that if $40,000 was paid to Mr. Dady the company would get the pier.

William W. Brauer, President of the steamship company, afterward stated that the Mr. Dady meant was Michael J. Dady, of Brooklyn.

Other names were mentioned, that of Mr. Gallagher, agent for the Central Vermont road; that of W. L. Bowman, a broker in Wall street, and the name of Dockmaster Fleming.

Attorney Warren made his charges at a public hearing before the Mayor which had been arranged by Dock Commissioner Hawkes, who has had a spirited controversy with Mr. Brauer over the pier.

Mr. Warren said:

"I had reason to believe that as an Independent Democrat when I joined the forces of this organization last year we would have a fair administration and that we would not have to go through the same procedure as formerly, and that we would not have to pay a bribe for the purpose of getting justice done, and for anything to be done in the line of favor."

Here Mayor Low put in:

"Don't you know we have asked you to make these charges and you have declined to make them? What do you mean by making such statements here?" "I mean just as I say exactly," answered Warren.

"Now, who is Mr. Gallagher?" asked the Mayor.

"You have asked me, Mr. Mayor, a question I cannot answer," said the attorney. "Who is he? I do not know. I am not a man who travels in a line with those people, and yet the man exists among people and lives right here in this city. I do not know who he is, but I do know that Mr. Bowman has approached this company, and through him I met Mr. Gallagher, who told us that Mr. Dady, of Brooklyn, would get as the privilege if we would put up $40,000. I did not believe it when he said it because I knew that the time had come when that thing had ceased."

There was much talk about the pier before the hearing ended, but no more talk about Mr. Dady.

Brauer Names Dady.

William W. Brauer, head of the steamship company, was seen after the hearing was over and asked what Dady he meant.

"Why, you all know the Dady—the one Dady," he said.

"Do you mean Michael J. Dady?" "Yes," he said.

"No, I never did." "Who did you see?" "Bowman. He is a broker in Wall street, his name is W. L. Bowman." "Who is Gallagher?" "I do not know," he said.

Dady in Havana.

At the office of Michael J. Dady it was learned to-day that he is now in Havana and is not expected home until the end of the month.

When J. H. Gallagher, agent of the Central Vermont Railroad, was seen he declared he knew nothing about the alleged attempt at blackmail.

ASKING TO BE IMPRISONED TO SAVE HER FROM HERSELF, GIRL TELLS OF ROMANCE.

The story of Vivian Alva as she told before Magistrate Hogan in the Jefferson Market Court to-day asking that he would commit her to the Bedford Home for women was so remarkable that the court officials lifted their eyebrows in wonder and asked themselves if it really told all.

She appeared at the West Thirtieth Street Station early this morning and asked Sergeant Shields to look her up on a charge of vagrancy. He could not get much out of her and she acted so strangely that he thought he had best do so and leave it to the Magistrate to decide her fate. The woman's story was as follows:

"I was born at sea in a terrible storm while my father and mother were on their way from London to South America. We were blown out of our course and wrecked on the coast of Maryland. Life-savers rescued us and we settled down to live in Maryland."

"I got a position as a Red Cross nurse when the Spanish war broke out. I went to Cuba, and there fell in love with a private in the Seventy-first New York Regiment. I met him in the hospital, and we were married. He thought he was dying at the time, but he recovered. We came back to New York and went to live in West Sixty-fifth street."

"After a time we quarrelled and he went to England. He enlisted in the English army and I have since heard that he was killed in South Africa."

"Then I fell in love with a detective named Michael J. Dady. He was a detective in the West Thirtieth Street Station. We lived at No. 61 West Sixty-first street. I did not know then that he was married. I have since learned that he has a wife and two children."

DAUGHTER RECONCILES HER PARENTS WHO HAD BEEN DIVORCED 17 YEARS.

After being divorced for seventeen years Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Lockwood appeared in Justice Marcan's court in Brooklyn this afternoon and asked that the decree be set aside.

With them was a beautiful young girl who was but a baby when they were parted, and their love for her was the real impelling cause for the long-delayed reconciliation.

Mrs. Lockwood is now living at No. 150 Quincy street, Brooklyn. Her husband is a well-known architect in Washington.

In 1885, Lockwood, then a resident of Brooklyn, sued his wife for a separation, charging her with cruel treatment. She entered a cross bill, alleging that he had broken his marriage vows. She got a decree of absolute divorce and the custody of the then two-year-old child Sarah. The court also ordered that Lockwood pay his wife $15 a week alimony.

Mrs. Lockwood made the formal application to Justice Marcan for the setting aside of the decree. Lockwood entered a deposition that his brother-in-law named Kenny, who had testified against him, was his personal enemy and that he had not told the truth.

Mrs. Lockwood testified that Kenny's testimony was all she had to prove her charges. She said that while she believed him then, she did not now, and Justice Marcan set the decree aside on this showing.

The father, mother and daughter went out of court together, apparently as happy as though there had never been a shadow in their lives. Mr. Lockwood said that their recognition of their mutual love for their child was what had drawn him and his wife together again.

WOMAN OF WEALTH CATAPULTED THROUGH CAB WINDOW IN COLLISION WITH CAR.

In a collision with a Madison avenue car at Fifty-sixth street and Madison avenue the private coupe of Mrs. William N. Barnum, of No. 563 Madison avenue, the wife of a lawyer at No. 22 Broad street, was overturned this afternoon. Mrs. Barnum was pitched through a window, but was not seriously hurt. Edward Stankard, the driver of the car, was thrown to the pavement, slightly on his head. He, too, escaped serious injury.

Mrs. Barnum had just entered the cab and Stankard had turned the horse when car No. 1921, northbound, struck the vehicle. Stankard, though slightly stunned, scrambled to his feet and released the horse. When the animal was clear the motorman started his car with the intention of pushing the overturned coupe off the track and getting out of the way.

Stankard jumped to the platform of the car and asked the number of the motorman. Instead of giving it the man on the car grabbed the identifying trip card from the rail, put his hand over his shield and applied the current. The conductor in the mean time pushed Stankard off the car.

Bystanders interfered at this juncture and compelled the street-car employees to give their numbers. The motorman was No. 1021, the conductor No. 1,214. Policeman Kelly, of the East Fifty-first street station, arrived as the car moved away and secured data for a station-house report.

CAR HITS CARRIAGE IN FUNERAL LINE.

One of the carriages in the funeral procession of Mrs. Warner, of No. 452 West Fifty-fifth street, was struck by a Broadway car at Thirty-sixth street this afternoon and considerably damaged. The procession was broken up for a time.

The car struck one of the front wheels, breaking it and letting the carriage down on that side. H. C. Muller and wife, of No. 221 Seventh avenue, and J. C. Miller, of No. 218 Seventh avenue, were in the carriage. They were shaken up, but did not sustain injuries. It was said a green motorman was responsible.

RAID POOL-ROOM AT BROADWAY AND 75TH STREET.

Agents of the Society for the Enforcement of Criminal Law invaded Capt. Kear's precinct this afternoon and raided a pool-room, taking five prisoners to the Centre Street Court before the police knew anything about it. The room was at Seventy-fifth street and Broadway, was exclusive and patronized by wealthy bettors. There was much excitement and great efforts to escape, many of the men fearing their betting habit might be made public.

FOODY'S LAWYER EXPECTS HIS ACQUITTAL.

After the trial of Capt. Foody adjourned for the day, ex-judge Olcott said that with the evidence adduced there was no chance to put the responsibility for the saloons being open on Foody, because the contention of the defense is that the men used by the District Attorney in no way resembled policemen and were able to get past the watchers when Foody's men would not have been able to.

ILLNESS CAUSES DISMISSAL OF FIREMAN AFTER 32 YEARS.

William D. Moore, who was dismissed from the Brooklyn Fire Department two days ago, after thirty-two years of service, because of his ill health in desperate circumstances. He is still in bed. One of his sons has typhoid fever and there is no chance of his getting a pension, as he is not a member of the uniformed force. Moore's discharge also prevents him from staying in the Firemen's Life Insurance Fund into which he has paid part of his salary for years. He will fight for reinstatement in the courts.

PITCHER GROUNDS, April 22.—Over the green award at the Polo grounds this afternoon there came nine spring grasshoppers, wearing the uniform of the New York team.

They might not have been grasshoppers, but they looked the part. They sprang about with wild abandon after the parabola of the ball. A variegated assortment of long sticks and short shanks huddled together and rubbed, and around them there could be seen a few of the most expert specimens from the turf to make a baseball holiday.

Were they not going to hit the Boston team?

Had they not beaten them in a frazzle yesterday with Matthews in the box? Looking the boys over from a calm, unimpaired standpoint it begins to look as though they would have to be ridden with a staff and a curb bit before the season is over. It is no wonder they have swelling of the chest, considering the fact that the Bostons are a tried old team of war horses, likely to do almost anything at any stage of the game.

Perfect Baseball Weather.

It was perfect baseball weather, which means that the thermometer was having a ball market away up in the seventies. The heat shimmered over the bleachers in waves and the beer and sausage vendors did a rushing business among the undergraduates.

The sultry weather was attributed to the lapse decision in the Pennsylvania Supreme Court, which in the National League is regarded as hot stuff.

From their bunch of leather-twisters the Boston's elected to use the curves of Mr. Willis. They had been laid away in camp during the winter and were a trifle stiff at first, but there were no noths on them.

SHOOT HIMSELF; WALKS MILE TO DIE.

Thin Pistol Wound So Slight It Astonishes Man and Bystander.

Otto Senten, a cigar packer, shot himself in the head this morning with a loose cartridge for a revolver and then walked a mile to a creek with intention of jumping in and finishing the job.

A policeman arrested him before he could make good his plan.

Senten, lived with his mother at No. 726 Courtlandt avenue. He has been ill with asthma for ten years. He did not work today because it was a Jewish holiday.

He left his home at his usual hour and went to Morris avenue and One Hundred and Sixty-fourth street. Here he raised a gun, this revolver and put it to his right temple.

He pulled the trigger and the blood ran down his face but he did not fall. He seemed surprised and so did several citizens, but they did not interfere with him.

He walked down the road and went over to a creek, where he finished the job.

Senten was taken to the hospital. He was in a bad way.

AQUEDUCT RACE TRACK, N. Y., April 22.—Three seasons of very ordinary weather came together in the two-day stakes at Aqueduct this afternoon, and the stake feature was not more attractive than the ordinary purse events.

From Paul and Francisco had been engaged in its stake the track would be filled to the gates. The Ponies promised a close race, for none of the talent could pick a decided choice.

The weather was delirious. The air from the ocean was laden with the salt fragrance from the meadows on Jamaica Bay and the track was a delight to ride to speed the afternoon.

The track was in its usual excellent shape. The attendance was large and betting was brisk.

The stewards today ordered that all bookies must thereafter remain in the back, while they attend to bets and have mounts during the afternoon. They will be given the liberty of the course at all other times.

HOT WAVE HITS NEW YORK; MERCURY RUNS UP TO 81.

Two Prostrations in City and One at Newark—Rain and Snow in West.

Tedina Calloot, of No. 125 Eileen-beth street, while at work in the subway at Mail street and Park Row, was overcome by the heat. He was revived by a surgeon from the New York Hospital.

Unidentified man, overcome at Lum and Vesey streets, Newark, N. J., this afternoon.

William Gould, twenty years old, of No. 1712 Park avenue, was overcome by the heat at One Hundred and Sixteenth street and Fifth avenue to-day.

The temperature registered at the New York Weather Bureau at 1 o'clock this afternoon was 78. The humidity was 61.

At 4 P. M. the mercury here had climbed to 81.

It's snowing and blowing and raining in various parts of the great West, and in various parts it's cooking, but if Forecaster Emery knows his business we are likely to escape much change either way.

The chances seem to be that New York will have a little warmer for the next forty-eight hours with a fine line of light southerly winds. After that it will probably get cooler as a result of the drenching in the Rocky Mountains but not enough cooler to call for heavy wraps.

Chicago, N. Y., April 22.—A man was overcome by the heat at Lum and Vesey streets this afternoon. Because all the windows were closed the victim was lying on the street for half an hour before he was taken to a hospital. He was in a bad way.

This was the first heat prostration in this city this season.

ARRESTED CHINESE PLOTTERS.
HONG KONG, April 22.—Chinese officials arrested six men who were known to have been sent to Canton for the purpose of spreading the rabid propaganda and for the purchase of arms and supplies.

WEATHER FORECAST.

Forecast for the thirty-six hours ending at 8 P. M. Wednesday for New York, City and vicinity. Fair to partly cloudy and warmer to-night; Wednesday partly cloudy; light to fresh southwest winds.

In Kansas and Nebraska, where it was so terribly hot yesterday, there has been a tremendous fall in temperature and there have been showers of considerable size. What a better, there are prospects for more rain.

In the western part of Missouri it is cooler and there have been showers, but in the eastern part it is getting hotter and it is still dry. The cold wave is moving east and the chances are that before night even St. Louis, which at this morning is degrees hotter than New York, will be fairly comfortable.

From these indications it would appear that all the scare about the damage to the winter wheat crop is over for the present.

Fires also, with open windows, have not heard the hum of mosquitoes this morning before the notes of early birds. The cold wave is moving east and the chances are that before night even St. Louis, which at this morning is degrees hotter than New York, will be fairly comfortable.
